Hi, I'm Gina and I'm a recovering suburbanite!

After my third all-day shift in a row at the hospital, I was beat. All I wanted was sleep and was in no mood to drive home to the suburbs, clean the house or even cook dinner. During my 45-minute commute, I had an epiphany – I work in Midtown, why don't I just live here and walk or bike to and from work—and actually get to bed at a decent hour!

Sweet dreams, here I come.
